What should be the priorities for a competition policy reform agenda to ensure that efficient businesses, large or small, can compete effectively and drive growth in productivity and living standards?
Yes There should also be one place to complain to regarding competition in business on a Federal level and not on states as states appear to have mechanisms in place that you cannot get a complaint through so therefore small business cannot survive and die as a result Government entities should not be operating commercial and trading functions where there is already business successfully operating and where there is no market shortage If Government entities do operate in business they should be subject to the same principles as small medium and large businesses with separate administrations Government entities that hold the cards or licences to where a person operates small business should not be able to compete in business at all
Are there unwarranted regulatory impediments to competition in any sector in Australia that should be removed or altered?
Yes Government entities that hold the cards or licences to where a person operates small business should not be able to compete in business If a government goes into business the same costs demanded from small business should also be occurred by their own operations and put back into the economy
Are government-provided goods and services delivered in a manner conducive to competition, while meeting other policy objectives?
No. Government in competition with us has totally breached the competitive neutrality laws of state and federal government and there is nowhere to complain They have breached all the ACCC have about competition, Misuse of marketing power, anti-competitive behaviour, Predatory pricing, unconscionable conduct, breach of business confidence and confidential information etc,etc Upon them starting to do their own business they have forgot all about their core principles and what their business is about so therefore standards they once had are no longer there and getting worse as they are too busy operating a business & trading entity
Would there be a public benefit in encouraging greater competition and choice in sectors with substantial government participation (including education, health and disability care and support)?
Education, Health, Disability care and support should be about government assisting private business enterprise to further future development for the benefit of the economy and people
Are the current competition laws working effectively to promote competitive markets, given increasing globalisation, changing market and social structures, and technological change?
No even though the ACCC advertise the competition laws they are quick to say not their jurisdiction or too hard basket
Are competition-related institutions functioning effectively and promoting efficient outcomes for consumers and the maximum scope for industry participation?
No - Everywhere we have been tells us it is not their jurisdiction so who's jurisdiction is it and who is accountable for assistance We have been to the ACCC, Ombudsman, Treasury, Local government, State government and federal government all not their jurisdiction Where do we go for our complaint?
What institutional arrangements would best support a self-sustaining process for continual competition policy reform and review?

One stop shop for all to complain to on a independent federal level
