

Reference number CR1533

Contact name

Paul Kouris

Is your submission confidential?

No

Submission type

Have Your Say

Comment

The prospect of all roads being tolled is unjust and I oppose it absolutely. This is economic rationalism gone mad.

Firstly our roads are already paid for by taxes.

Secondly double taxation is unconstitutional.

Thirdly our public transport system is not adequate to service a decentralised urbanised community commuting great distances to their work.

Fourthly, it would discriminate against the poor.

Finally, it would add to the cost of taxis and buses.

Paul Kouris

Barrister

14/10/2014