

Dear Editor

This submission is to be associated to Section 92, detailing that all roads are the property of the public who travel of them and that they are free to travel on such roads. They belong to the public property for they have been paid by the public via the local government grants of Public monies and as such are paid in full and have no need for additional revenue such as a Levy tax.

The public needs to have a voice to show that the Federal Government's proposal to levy all main roads to the public use, feels it necessary to raise funds, then they have to challenge the Legal Constitutions of Law to change such levy discussions, and this they will have to make constitutional changes to allow this to happen, and I strongly resist any such tax being applied to roads that have been laid down decades and centuries ago.

If the Federal Government wants to make the roads better, look carefully at what the fuel costs by percentage compared to twenty years ago when a barrel of oil was $87.00, and compare this same oil price today with the price of petrol per litre at $1.49, and ask, why is this product still over parity when it was 38 cents per litre. Who is making profit here? I rest my case.
